Security and convenience in multifamily access control

Best practices for property managers

To balance security and convenience in multifamily access control, property managers should use a multi-layered approach to security, including mobile apps for access control, visitor management systems, regular security audits, and more.

The Role of Biometrics in Office Access Control

Enhancing Security and Convenience

Leasing agencies are increasingly moving towards virtual leasing, which began due to COVID restrictions. This practice has grown in popularity despite no longer being driven by health concerns.

TRENDS

Technology Will Drive Multifamily Housing Trends in 2023.

Multi-Housing News

The Executive Council of the National Multifamily Housing Council predicts that technology will play a key role in multifamily housing trends in 2023. This includes the use of data analytics and smart home technology. Additionally, sustainability and wellness will remain a focus in multifamily design and construction.

Property management firms are experimenting with a four-day workweek for employees.

National Apartment Association

Companies who have implemented a shortened workweek cited an increase in employee productivity, improved work-life balance, and cost savings. Some saw a 5% increase in productivity, while others experienced reduced stress levels and increased employee satisfaction. This trend is expected to continue as more companies adopt the four-day workweek to attract and retain employees in a competitive job market.

INDUSTRY SHOW RECAP

LocklyPRO brings its A-game to Las Vegas.

At ISC West, Team Lockly PRO showcased their complete range of smart access solutions for multifamily and commercial spaces. The solutions included Lockly Guard smart locks such as ATHENA for standard aluminum or metal door frames, Lockly ACCESS TOUCH for adding fingerprint access to existing deadbolts, and INGRESS and INGRESS VISION for smart access control with live video and two-way talk doorbell. These smart access solutions make it easy to manage door and entry points for homes, offices, or properties.

Visitors also learned about and explored LocklyOS, the secure cloud access portal that enables users to monitor and manage the usage of any Lockly smart lock or entry point solution from anywhere globally.

Contact prosales@lockly.com for more information about these pro solutions and more.
